MACFARLANE: Hutchinson testified Trump also wanted to go to the Capitol, which she described being told led to an altercation in the presidential limo when his chief Secret Service agent Bobby Engel refused for security reasons.

HUTCHINSON: The President said something to the effect of, "I'm the f-ing President, take me up to the Capitol now" to which Bobby responded, "sir, we have to go back to the West Wing." The President reached up towards the front of the vehicle to grab at the steering wheel. Mr. Engel grabbed his arm, said, "sir, you need to take your hand off the steering wheel. We're going back to the West Wing. We're not going to the Capitol." Mr. Trump then used his free hand to lunge towards Bobby Engel.

MACFARLANE: A source close to the secret service tells CBS News Engel and the driver are prepared to testify Trump never lunged for the steering wheel and that neither of them were attacked.

[ON-SCREEN HEADLINE: Jan. 6th Hearings; Explosive Testimony From Meadows Aide; John Dickerson on Impact of Cassidy Hutchinson's Testimony]

JOHN DICKERSON: But recoll — recollections can vary, and it's the committee's job and all of our job to make sure that whatever Cassidy Hutchinson said lines up with what — with other testimony. This has been a long series of hearings. There will be many more, and there are other people who can corroborate, some of whom who haven't come forward, who can nail this down. Because you can imagine it might be hard to remember the precision of that day, although she had notes and so forth else, when it was pretty hectic inside the White House.

MICK MULVANEY: We are hearing this morning that the U.S. Secret Service is pushing back on one of her allegations regarding the assault inside the limousine after the rally. But that's how these hearings are supposed to work. If she said something that was wrong, we would expect people to show up and testify to that fact.
