

NBC's Today
12/16/22
7:01:32 a.m. [TEASE]
10 seconds

[ON-SCREEN HEADLINE: Twitter Turmoil]

SAVANNAH GUTHRIE: Twitter turmoil. The accounts of search prominent journalists who cover Elon Musk suddenly suspended overnight. Why critics are calling the move very concerning.

(....)

7:12:47 a.m.
36 seconds

[ON-SCREEN HEADLINE: Twitter Suspends Journalists Over Jet Trackers]

GUTHRIE: Twitter has suspended several high-profile journalists who cover the platform and its CEO, Elon Musk. The list includes employees of The New York Times, Washington Post, CNN, and several other outlets. Musk says the suspensions stem from the platform's new rules banning users from sharing private jet trackers. Musk tweeted, "Criticizing all day long is fine, but doxxing my real time location and endangering my family is not." He later added the suspensions would last seven days, though some of the journalists said they were told the bans were permanent and many of those journalists say they were not reporting those coordinates at all.