[ON-SCREEN HEADLINE: Minnesota Sues Trump Admin. Over ICE Deployment]

GAYLE KING: We're going to begin with the latest pushback to President Trump's anti-immigration tactics. It's a new lawsuit filed by the state of Minnesota and the Twin Cities. Now, officials there allege that ICE agents have invaded the area, wreaking havoc, they say, and violating residents' constitutional rights. And, guess what? They want them out. We've also seen continuing protests nationwide after an ICE agent shot and killed 37-year-old Renee Nicole Good in Minneapolis last week. Lana Zak is in Minneapolis covering it all for us. Lana, good morning to you. What can you tell us?

LANA ZAK: Good morning, Gayle. So, the state of Minnesota is accusing federal agents of using aggressive tactics, creating a culture of fear and straining local law enforcement's ability here to keep the peace.

MINNESOTA ATTORNEY GENERAL KEITH ELLISON (D): This is, in essence, a federal invasion of the twin cities and Minnesota, and it must.

ZAK: Minnesota Attorney General Keith Ellison sued the Trump administration, claiming that his deployment of federal agents and officers illegally oversteps the state's law enforcement authority, "endangering the public safety, health, and welfare of all Minnesotans" and "provok[ing]...protests" in the process.

MINNEAPOLIS MAYOR JACOB FREY (D): You've seen the videos. At times, there are as many as 50 agents arresting one person. The scale is wildly disproportionate and it has nothing to do with keeping people safe.

ZAK: With clashes continuing between federal law enforcement and demonstrators Monday, the lawsuit pointed to several alleged uses of excessive force.

RENEE GOOD: That's fine, dude. I'm not mad at you.

ZAK: — including by the ICE agent who shot and killed Renee Good last week.

WHITE HOUSE PRESS SECRETARY KAROLINE LEAVITT [on FNC's America Reports, 01/12/26]: This deranged lunatic woman was trying to ram him over.

ZAK: Trump administration officials claim it was a justified act of self-defense.

FREY: And we're feeling the impact here in Minneapolis. Schools have closed. People are afraid to go to work, shop, or seek medical care. 911 calls are up.

ZAK: The lawsuit said there will be over 80 911 calls related to immigration enforcement since December 9, estimating that skyrocketing police overtime cost could reach more than $2 million in just a four-day span with local officers reporting “heightened hypervigilance and fear.” In a statement, the Department of Homeland Security said the Minnesota lawsuit was “prioritizing politics over public safety,” adding, “we have the Constitution on our side on this and we look forward to proving that in court.” And to give you a sense of the scale of the federal presence here, the Twin Cities have just a little bit over 1,000 agents whereas there are more than 2,000 federal officers and agents here with more on the way, Nate.

NATE BURLESON: Lana, thank you.
