MICHAEL STRAHAN: But Hillary, there has been a lot of talk about that call the President made to the men's hockey team. Will the women's team be accepting his offer to come to the White House?

[ON-SCREEN HEADLINE: Live on GMA; U.S. Women's Hockey Star Hilary Knight]

HILARY KNIGHT: I'm not sure. I'm really not sure where that stands. There was an announcement the other day. As far as my knowledge, like, I have not seen anything. I thought the call in of itself was distasteful and an awesome [inaudible] moment to refocus the narrative and understand our words matter and how we speak about women matters. And we need to celebrate this team as we earned our celebration on the stage, and representing our country in the best way. So, really looking forward to leaning into that and continuing to drive success through our group and be the inspiration that we are in our communities.

ROBIN ROBERTS: Well, I hope that you — and you've handled it — everyone — with such — with such grace and strength.
