

I've Had It

08/31/26

4:42 mark

2 minutes and 16 seconds

JENNIFER WELCH: So they wanted to scare you with immigrants, and it worked. He got, he got reelected, mass deportations now. And then all of these triple Trumpers start getting deported if they're Latinos for Trump or some white dude has a fiancé from Venezuela. She gets deported. He's like, "whoa, I've been a Republican my whole life. How's this happening to me?" And then they're like, "oh, these people mean they're literally gonna deport everybody." And it turns out, thankfully, the majority of us don't like seeing little kids separated from their parents, and it turns out the majority of us don't like seeing people regardless of their citizenship, throwing in concentration camps and denied basic food and health care and it's disgusting, and so, the next thing they moved on to is an old, McCarthy-style, the-commies-are-coming Red Scare. And here's all I have to say. Every, every government has forms of socialism. And I want the government testing the water, not some for-profit testing center that is going to be paid to cut corners. Look at all of the food problems we have right now: killer blueberries, contaminated beef, explosive diarrhea. I mean, we've had too many days in the news cycle lately with Americans with explosive diarrhea. I mean, surely people can understand this is one lie that Republicans have done. They say government needs to be run like a business, and it doesn't because businesses want to be vicious and make and maximize profits. They're vicious in it. Absolutely vicious. They're cold-hearted killers when it comes to profit, and that's why you can't have the government work that way, because they need to go out of their way to ensure public safety. And so, they can do all of this all they want to. America is never going to be a socialist country. The best countries in the world have a mixture of capitalism and socialism, and these, of course, are nuance things that a lot of triple Trumpers don't understand. But this is their big thing. This is — this is how they're going to prove to all of the triple Trumpers. Hey, vote for us. We're not commies. Ridiculous.

(...)

11:11 mark

2 minutes and 31 seconds

WELCH: [W]e know why these Trump supporters, these MAGA sycophants, these MAGA billionaire sycophants sucked up to Donald Trump because they have to control the narrative at all times. And CBS News puts out a headline like this under the tutelage and oversight of Bari Weiss. Pop this up, CBS News: "As the nation prepares to mark 25 years of September 11, 2001, Abdul el-Sayed, the Democratic nominee for U.S. Senate in Michigan, may be facing the risk of renewed scrutiny and fresh political attack." Why is Abdul facing scrutiny? He's condemned 9/11. What is it just because he's Muslim? Is that what you're doing here? Because I would think if there's renewed scrutiny, the person I'd be looking at would be one Jared Kushner, one Jared Kushner, who is just like this. I mean, six billion reasons to understand why Jared Kushner is compromised regarding 9/11. He and the Saudis are as tight as ticks. Donald Trump just thinks — I'm — that one guy from Saudi. God, he's a good-looking guy. He's so hot. They funded 9/11. Are you serious right now? So Democrats, let's sharpen our attacks. If these people are so concerned about 9/11, let's talk about the fact that Mike Rogers likes to play patty cake with the Saudis as well. So, this has just completely insane. The people who are terrorist sympathizers are MAGA. I mean, has Donald Trump ever, ever called out the Saudis for anything? The murder of Jamal Khashoggi? The funding of 9/11? I don't know because they're rich as shit and that's all that matters. That's all that matters to them. And here's the fundamental difference between Abdul and all of these MAGA people: Abdul el-Sayad believes in universal human rights, and he, the Muslim man, is standing up for very, very marginalized people while MAGA is standing up for the uber, uber billionaires, funders of mass terrorism, the kingdom of Saudi Arabia. I mean, get real. Bari Weiss, David and Larry Ellison, what an absolute disgrace. That is not journalism. That is propaganda. And I hope that nobody falls for that. And go — let's go support Abdul el-Sayed. We've got to get him that win in Michigan.